BALANCE LIFE IN A SEA OF COMFORT

CREATING INTENTIONAL SPACES FOR MAXIMUM PRESENCE

During this summer I decided to take some personal time to immerse myself in quiet retreats and relaxing recreation such as scuba diving. I wanted to absorb a serene atmosphere rather than the faster paced, yet cool rhythm of the French Riviera. Relaxation and peaceful surroundings were calling me. I found myself at a quiet Italian hillside retreat. I soaked in the pool as well as the landscape of the soft rolling hills before me. As I sat listening to the sound of the water, a few birds and the overall silence of the day, a wave of tranquility washed over me and I exhaled in relief. It was in this moment that the meaning of relaxation took on a different meaning. How many times a day do you find yourself in a comfortable space where all the noise of the exterior world quiets down and you can return fully present, fully aware of your own breathing? I know all this might sound very holistic, but as an interior and exterior designer, the feeling you want to transmit is the foundation of creating any kind of space. It is at the core of serving my clients . . . the feeling of balance in a sea of comfort.

Warmest regards,
Ernst Jan Zantingh

DUTCH DESIGN INSPIRATION

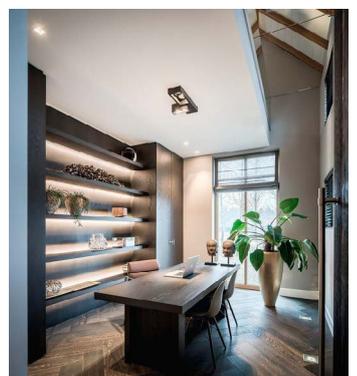

INSPIRATION FROM A RECENT TRIP TO THE NETHERLANDS TO SHOP FOR MY CLIENT'S VILLA IN THE SOUTH OF FRANCE. WE JUST LOVE THE COMFORT AND STYLE OF ALL THESE MODELS.

DESIGN NOTES . . .

THE FEELING OF QUIET AND COMFORT

- A quiet elegant abstract ambiance.
- Quiet spaces don't need to be large.
- Refined simplicity.
- A calming energy flowing through the house.

IN PROGRESS: VILLA IN SAINT PAUL DE VENCE

The ZANTOS team has been busy this last month as we begin to renovate a villa for our German client in the lovely village of Saint Paul de Vence, a lovely picturesque village renowned for art and home to numerous art galleries and local painters. Over the years this area has become a prime art destination in the south of France.
